My reasons to be a candidate for ITRA's Steering Committee

ITRA is a wonderful adventure. The idea sprouted during a simple discussion in Courmayeur on a Spring day in 2012. In less than five years, it became a great and wonderful international association. On June 11th, ITRA will pass an important landmark by giving itself a new democratically elected Steering Committee gathering institutionals, organizers and runners.

The work set out for this upcoming Steering Committee is immense. It will have to reinforce the reunion of all the players from around the world and provide them with the best services. The development of trail-running has to represent the common will of all the actors, while respecting the values that have brought us together.

For the first time since ITRA was created, the federal world will fully participate into the ITRA's life. This is compulsory to have an adequate support; specially to discuss with public authorities and to structure training in the clubs. As a spokesperson for the actors of trail-running, ITRA's role will be essential, allowing the IAAF and the national athletics federations to find their position in trail-running in the respect of our values and vision for the future of our sport.

I did the job to the best of my ability, with all my energy and passion and the invaluable help of the founding members until 2015 and of the outgoing Steering Committee since 2 years, to construct ITRA's foundations. I particularly want to thank my teammates of the Executive Board, José Santos, Enrico Pollini, Janet Ng and Nic Bornman, as well as Patrick Basset, president of the health commission and Pierre Sallet president of Athletes For Transparency. We made a wonderful team and I hope I will be able to pursue this mission with them and with the whole new Steering Committee.

With my friend José, we are candidate for the 2 seats reserved to the founding members. Our mission will be to pass on our knowledge and experience to the new steering committee. Being the only two candidates among the founding members, our election is assured. However, on the one hand, it allows all runners and organizers seats to be left free, thus allowing more people to participate in the Steering Committee and, on the other hand, it will be up to the new Steering Committee to decide on our full legitimacy - or not - to participate in the life of the ITRA, in the place that the Steering Committee will decide to allocate us.

I sincerely hope that you will grant me your trust.
